

phenomenon that is 'The Indigo Child'. I hope to facilitate greater awareness so that our kids might regain control of their lives, find reverence for themselves within themselves and in turn, regain the global respect that they deserve. The kids today are not the problem—it's the society in which they live that we have created for them—a world that moves too fast for us, let alone our kids, where our kids are beginning to look to drugs and alcohol to slow things down. We need to unite and take responsibility for our kids and to stop drugging them up so they fit in. We have to rebuild society and its view of our kids by remodelling the perception we have of one another. We have to begin honouring them as the leaders of tomorrow and the spiritual warriors that they are, to encourage them, support them and ensure they become all that they were meant to be. If we don't, we run the risk of missing out on something quite miraculous, something the capuchin monkey has known about for years!

Indigo children often demonstrate the following qualities:

- They are often powerfully intuitive and psychically aware.
- They are sensitive and at one with animals and nature as a whole.
- They are quite often telepathic and assume that others can hear their thoughts (so do not assume your child is being rude just because he or she doesn't respond to questions or directions in an audible way).
- They are usually acutely artistic, observant, academically advanced and socially adept... but most have difficulty demonstrating these skills in a manner acceptable to 'the system'.
- They are not ADD or ADHD and should NOT be treated or medicated as such ... I mean, would you give your child a line of cocaine each morning before school? Ritalin is classed by the US FDA alongside heroin and cocaine. Yet, there are classrooms in America where every child has Ritalin every morning.
- They should be nurtured, inspired and encouraged but not treated as different as or better than anyone else. Being an Indigo is not an excuse to act up or intentionally buck the system.
- They need, want and respect boundaries that are consistent and fair.
- They look to their parents as role models and they expect them to act as such.
- They are incredibly intolerant of those who display hypocrisy, ignorance and arrogance.
- They do not respond to fear-based control or disciplinary techniques.
- They carry the capuchin monkey as their power aspect, animal spirit ally and totem.

They were so grateful for the opportunity to speak about what was in their hearts, their perception of the world and their place within it that their "tough guy" personas shrivelled to reveal the spiritual warriors they truly were.
